PERSONAL STATEMENT

When I turned ten I decided I wanted to be a professional soccer player. I dedicated myself to it fully, and began to train formally every day. By the time I was fourteen I was an eighth grader playing for the high school varsity team and starting on the state championship winning club team. Everything seemed to be going as planned, and my dream felt like it was creeping steadily closer into view. However, one day in that same year, I began to notice a twinge of stabbing pain in my lower back. But, because of the pressure I was now under, I tried to ignore it and keep playing. I was in a situation at home that, when I tried to express that I had back pain, I was accused of faking. Regardless of how much pain I was in, I could never find the inner strength to stand up for myself, and so I continued to play through it. Eventually, it got to the point where there were days that I could barely walk, or even turn over in my sleep. After three years of living like this, I was finally taken to a spine specialist who found bilateral fractures on the transverse processes of L5, and an emergency surgery was scheduled. I had two screws and two hooks put in, and because I had played on the fractures for so long, the bone piece on the left side had drifted so far away from the spine that it was not useable to screw back on. The spine surgeon was forced to perform a hip graft in order to have enough bone for the surgery. When I woke up from that surgery I swore I would always stand up for myself from this moment on, and always be an advocate for anyone who suffered physical pain. This is the first moment I knew that I wanted to be a physical therapist.

It was also the first moment that I decided to continue to play soccer despite the complications and obstacles that came with having the surgery. I began physical therapy two months following my surgery with a physical therapist who never questioned my dream of continuing on with soccer. She always encouraged me to keep playing soccer and pursue my dreams. Together we pushed so hard that in the same year as my back surgery, I also won Gatorade Player of the Year for the state of New Mexico. Playing professionally was no longer feasible, but when you shoot for the moon, even if you miss you land amongst the stars. For me this meant playing Division One soccer for Tennessee Tech University. It took a lot of hard work and dedication to do this. Putting the human body through Division One soccer is grueling for anybody, but it took an extra toll on me having the added complication of pedicle screws.

PERSONAL STATEMENT

I had two very successful years playing for Tech, but then things slowly started to degrade. My body was suffering from all of the things I was putting it through. By the end of spring training my junior year, there were mornings when my roommate had to put my shoes on for me before weights at six am. I realized I needed to decide between finishing my college career, and my health. To the outsider this sounds like an obvious and simple decision, but when you have played a sport you have loved since you were ten, and loved it enough to continue playing even after a back surgery, it becomes much more complicated than it sounds. In the end, I did not have much choice but to medically retire. It was the hardest decision I have ever had to make in my life. Following my retirement, I fell into a depression as I suffered from an intense loss of identity and self-worth. That summer I went home to my mothers, and shadowed an incredible physical therapist named David. Not only did he heal many of my physical conditions through physical therapy, he helped me to realize that the heart, drive, and passion I had for soccer was not created because of soccer, but that I have always had that inside me no matter what it was going to go toward. While I was shadowing him, he inspired me to create a new identity, one that will be much greater than the one I had just lost: an identity as a physical therapist. I feel extraordinary excitement to combine my natural raw drive with the extremely personal connection I have to helping people who live in pain. Although this experience has been, and still is very difficult and challenging, I would never change it, because I believe I was meant to fight these battles so that I could be a leader and a standing testimony for people to see that on the other side of pain, there is the possibility for living and not just surviving.

Throughout my lifetime I have faced many challenges, but by far the greatest challenge was an injury I sustained while playing competitive soccer as a teenager. I had been playing the sport since I was four years old, and had excelled at it. I was working hard towards my dream of playing on the national team when I started having excruciating pain in my lower back during a club championship game in Arizona. Initially I was told by my local orthopedic doctor to just rest for three weeks and continue playing as the pain permitted. After taking a few weeks off, I was able to return, but a dull pain continued to plague me after each training session. I was determined not to let this get in my way and continued to play through chronic back pain for over a year and a half.

Finally, after suffering on and off for over eighteen months, my mother took me to a back specialist in Denver, and through a bone scan it was determined that I had a bilateral L5 pars defect. I ended up having a pars repair my junior year of high school that consisted of two pedicle screws and hooks bilaterally, and a bone graft put into my L5. Having this diagnosis was incredibly hard for me to come to terms with. I went from being recruited from several of the top colleges in the country, to having the choice of playing on a much less prestigious Division One team. My dream of playing at the highest level was shattered. The thought of not being able to participate in the sport I loved so much, was overwhelming to say the least. I started doing physical therapy three days a week with an incredible physical therapist named Marsha, whose dedication and positive attitude helped me persevere. It was my experience working with Marsha that first made me realize that I wanted to become a physical therapist. After months of hard work, I was able to play my senior year of high school. In fact that year I broke the New Mexico record for goals scored.

I ended up attending Tennessee Technology University on a soccer scholarship where I played for three years as a core player, while working toward my degree in Exercise Science. Unfortunately during the end of my third season, my body began to break down again. Playing at a competitive level was taking a toll on my back. By the end of spring training I could hardly bend down to tie my own shoes. I was forced into considering medical retirement. Choosing to medically retire was the hardest decision I have ever had to make. The physical pain was much less than the mental anguish I endured. Up to this point my identity had been as a soccer player, and much of my self-worth was wrapped up in my performance level. In the beginning the biggest emotion I had to examine and conquer was anger. I asked over and over, “why me?” Life felt unfair.

However, I forced myself to accept my circumstances and chose my body’s health over the love of the game. Although it was an incredibly hard decision to make, I knew it was the right decision. During the fall of my senior year I obtained an internship with the head athletic trainer, as well as becoming a volunteer student coach of the team. Helping my teammates and other athletes on and off the field became my new passion. Actually as the time passed, I began to feel a sense of accomplishment and reward that I had never experienced before as an athlete. It genuinely felt amazing to help people even in the smallest of ways, whether offering words of encouragement or helping them complete stretching exercises. Sometimes when I reflect back about my experience, I still feel sadness, but those feelings seem to ease the more time goes by. I have learned so much about myself. I have learned to persevere through tough times, and I feel emotionally stronger than I ever have before. Sustaining such a severe injury myself, and understanding the physical and emotional pain that comes with it, will help me be a better physical therapist. I am thankful that I have found a new passion. I cannot think of anything more rewarding than enabling others to lead a better physical life.

I feel that if given the opportunity to be a part of the University of St. Augustine, I will excel both in my academic life and my chosen profession. After researching many schools, I believe St. Augustine's program is exactly what I am looking for. Its students have highly successful board exam rates for the NPTE, as well as being well prepared for any clinical setting upon completion of the program.

I hope to be able to meet the faculty and to be a part of the student body at the University of St. Augustine. If accepted, I would contribute my determination, motivation and personality to every aspect of the program. I will build on my life experience to motivate me to push myself further. I am determined to succeed in a career that I feel happy doing every day.

RECOMMENDATION CONCERNING ADMISSION

I highly recommend this applicant

Date: 6/13/18

From: Junior S. Munsterman

To whom it may concern:

I am writing this letter to recommend Zoie Hensley for acceptance into your Physical Therapy program.

I have known Zoie for approximately 3 years. Zoie did observation hours with us at our Odessa SERC Physical Therapy clinic.

Zoie was always very punctual, I never saw her “running late”, and she was always dressed appropriately for the setting. She never wore anything that was inappropriate in a revealing way, nor that would restrict her functionally from doing her job. Zoie is a very fun and lively individual that brought a lot of energy to the clinic. She seemed very at ease with the patients, and readily engaged new patients.

Zoie showed interest in the patient’s conditions and problems, from both a personal and professional point of view. She readily asked questions regarding Physical Therapy and the industry. When conversing with patients, it was easy to see that she truly cared about them and what they were saying.

In short, I believe that her character is such that she would be perfect for your Physical Therapy program.

Sincerely,

Junior S. Munsterman, MPT, ATC

RE: Zoie Hensley

From: Dr. Damon C. Dornbier
280 S. Jefferson Ave
Cookeville, TN. 38506

Dear PTCAS:

I hired Zoie in April of 2018 for an exercise therapist position with my practice. This was a new position at the practice and it needed a person that was able to take a hold of it and provide the necessary attention to make it successful. Zoie jumped right in and started taking command from the very beginning. I see that she is not afraid to do what needs to be done. She is very informative and caring to the patients. She explains and communicates very well to patients and she has a good rapport with the patients.

Also, I see that Zoie gets along with co-workers very well. She is very likeable and it shows with staff and I. She is dedicated to her Job and she is punctual, which I highly appreciate as an owner.

Zoie tells me that she helps with soccer coaching as well at the Tennessee Tech University. I greatly admire that about her, because it shows me that she is a teacher of her sport and she is will to help those in need.

Zoie is of good character, being good natured and humble as well. I feel that Zoie will be an excellent Physical Therapist and I truly feel she is going to be successful in her career.

Sincerely,

Dr. Damon C. Dornbier

RECOMMENDATION CONCERNING ADMISSION

I highly recommend this applicant

Letter of Recommendation

Date: July 30, 2018

Dear Potential University:

It is my honor to recommend Zoie Hensley for admission into your Doctor of Physical Therapy program. I am familiar with Zoie from her professional observation in my physical therapy clinic for an extended period of time in the summer of 2017. Zoie demonstrated many qualities which causes me to eagerly desire her to join the physical therapy profession. Her professional demeanor, compassion to help the needy, and thorough knowledge and experience in the field of exercise science qualifies her to be an elite physical therapist in the future.

As Zoie's supervisor, she was an extreme joy to work with. As she observed, she demonstrated professionalism which improved the quality of care for our entire clinic. She had impeccable timeliness, was very reliable, and communicated in a way that improved the confidence of all our patients. It was also moving to observe her compassion toward patients. It was easy to notice that she truly cared how each patient's injury impacted their quality of life. Lastly, her knowledge and application of exercise science was very impressive. She always had applicable and relevant questions in regards to the treatment and outcomes of patients. She understood many concepts on the same level as an entry level physical therapist due to her experience in exercise science. I have never had an observation student with as high of intellect previous to Zoie.

I have a special place in my heart for those who serve and Zoie is one of those people. She has participated in many service projects which are always focused on helping the needy. Her service is the fruit that is produced from the good heart inside of her. I hope and pray that you carefully consider Zoie Hensley's application and that you find a place for her in this University. I will assure you that she will not disappoint you.

If you have any questions or concerns, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Dear search committee,

Zoie Hensley has asked me to write a letter of recommendation for her acceptance into the physical therapy program. I recommend Ms. Zoie to you with enthusiasm. I believe that she would make an excellent addition to your program.

Zoie was a student in my EXPW 1022 Introduction to Exercise Science, 3410 Lifespan Human Motor Development and 4520 Adapted Physical Activity and Sport courses. She showed excellent professional characteristics. She was always punctual, prepared, and was always an active participant in the classes mentioned above. She showed the ability to work well with others, whether it was with group assignments or offering aid to a fellow classmate(s). She also showed great respect for herself and others. Zoie was not intimidated to speak aloud in class during lecture or group activities, whether it was to ask/answer a question or participate in discussion. I believe that these traits show she is capable of representing herself and your program well.

Because of these attributes listed above, it is my personal and professional opinion that Ms. Zoie Hensley would be a tremendous addition to your physical therapy program.

Please do not hesitate to call upon me if I can be of further assistance.

Yours with Respect,

Brittany L. Elmore
