PERSONAL STATEMENT

A meaningful experience in my life is also one that is more recent. My junior year of college my grandma's health declined rapidly and without much warning.

The fervor my grandma once had was challenged when she was diagnosed with lumbar stenosis and spondylolisthesis at the age of eighty-three. After enduring a unsuccessful spinal fusion and L3-4-5 laminectomy, she lost the majority of function below her waist. This once very active, independent woman now became dependent on her family. Since I was in school only a few hours away, I came home frequently to help my family care for her. I observed the nurses, physical therapists, occupational therapists, and ancillary staff as they cared for my grandmother. During the time I spent in these facilities, I was most impressed by the progress my grandmother made from the physical therapy she received both in the hospital and at home.

In the beginning the progress was measurable and everyone believed that she may have a chance for independence again. Physical therapy visited to help her strengthen her upper body to allow for some participation in normal activities. We, as a family, worked with her daily on the exercises provided by the therapist. I was the most interested in this part of her healthcare because of the impact it made on her quality of life. This would end within 30 days as progress stopped and her motor function became worse. Due to her decline in progress, the rehabilitation facility prepared for her discharge to my parent's house. Preparing for her discharge my family came together to purchase and learn how to use a variety of equipment including a Hoyer Lift, electric hospital bed, and other adaptive equipment for bathing and eating. All of my grandmother's activities of daily living were now dependent on her family.

We were responsible for all of her caretaking needs ranging from administering medications to transfers in and out of bed. It took a lot of practice but we were able to find ways to help make her stay more comfortable. I used a Hoyer lift device to move my grandma from the bed to the chair, I assisted her with taking her medications, and other activities throughout the day. It was difficult but also incredibly rewarding to know that we, as a family, were supporting and giving her the best possible care during her time of need.

My grandma's transition from the rehabilitation facility to our home was easier for my parents since they are both Registered Nurses, however, it was much more difficult for my other family members and I since we did not have that type of training. As the daughter of two healthcare providers, I have had many opportunities to witness the need for a team approach in providing care for patients. I have shadowed in ambulatory surgery centers and large health care facilities, but I had yet to witness, until now, the care and attention professionals would give my grandmother. This experience has given me a strong appreciation for the impact healthcare providers can make on their patients and their families in both a positive and negative way.

I gained more compassion because it made me consider the fact that every individual has an extraordinary story. They deserve to always be treated with the utmost respect and for that respect to never be compromised. Seniors that you see in the health care setting have a life full of experiences with amazing stories just like my grandmother. After being diagnosed with lymphoma, her mental state deteriorated creating yet another challenge, but she was always given love and respect from both her family and health care providers. Due to this experience, I feel very strongly that this is something that every patient regardless of age, illness, or physical/mental state deserves.

As an individual, this experience helped me mature. While caring for my grandmother I found my passion for geriatrics and I realized how much of an impact a physical therapist can have on someone's quality of life. Through this difficult time I gained patience, thoughtfulness, compassion, and increased knowledge of the roles within a healthcare team.

Although this experience was one of the most upsetting in my life, I gained so much knowledge. I spent a large amount of time in hospitals and rehabilitation settings which allowed me to observe a number of professionals that worked towards my grandma's recovery. The experiences I had during these times truly make me feel more prepared for my future.

My interest in Physical Therapy started out at a young age as a result of injuries sustained being a competitive cheerleader. Although it was a tough and frustrating process I was fascinated by how stretches and strengthening exercises could help make such great progress for my recovery. I held onto this peak of interest until college when I chose my major and future career path, however, it wasn't until my sophomore year when my Grandmother fell ill that I knew I had been heading down the right path. My grandma suffered from rheumatoid and osteoarthritis starting from a young age. Through my life she endured two knee replacements, a hip replacement, and later on a spinal fusion and laminectomy. If you knew my grandma you knew she was a social butterfly, often with a social life much fuller than mine. With this being said, nothing held her back. When she was recovering from these procedures she gave it her all just like she did for everything in life. After her recovery she would be back moving again as if nothing had inhibited her in the first place.

My sophomore year of college my grandma was diagnosed with lumbar stenosis and spondylolisthesis. She declined quickly and without much warning. After enduring a cervical spinal fusion and L3-4-5 laminectomy, she wasn't her spunky socialite self anymore. Although she lost the majority of the function in her legs she kept on pushing. A Physical Therapist came by the house working on her mobility and range of motion everyday and she kept on pushing no matter how hard it became. Although her condition had reached a point where rehabilitation was far from a possibility, the care the Physical Therapist's gave her was able to slow down the speed at which her joints and muscles degenerated. Without the help of these therapist, I don't believe my grandma would have been with my family as long as she was. They were able to get her up out of bed and smiling when we thought nothing else could. I will never forget the impact those therapists' made on my Grandma's life and I only hope that one day I can make that great of an impact. There are lives that can be saved by surgeons, doctors, and nurses. However, some people's quality of life can be saved by a Physical Therapist and that's the kind of impact I want to have on individuals.

University of St. Augustine is the right fit for me because the school provides a high success rate for board exams, as well as, an impressive success rate for therapist's after graduation. Based off of extensive research and communication with recent graduates, I have determined that the University of St. Augustine has all of the requirements I need to become a successful Physical Therapist.

To Whom It May Concern:

Please accept this letter on behalf of Isabelle Early so that I may highly recommend her for admittance into your Physical Therapy program. Isabelle is an exceptionally motivated and mature young lady, and should be considered an excellent candidate for your program.

I first met Isabelle in the fall of 2015, as she was a student in my First-Year Studies class during her freshman year. She was one of the most attentive students in the class, sitting on the front row and soaking up everything she could to help with the transition from high school to college. In the fall of 2017, I became Isabelle's academic advisor in the Kinesiology program. She and I have met regularly since then to discuss her career goals and academic path, and I have witnessed her passion for the field of physical therapy unfold. She is taking all of the right steps to prepare herself for a future as a physical therapist. In addition to completing the appropriate pre-requisite coursework, Isabelle has close to 400 hours shadowing physical therapists, which demonstrates her commitment to this field.

Outside of the classroom, however, Isabelle is quite active in extracurricular activities. She has served extensively within her sorority in a variety of roles that relate to the campus and the community. She also is currently serving as the Homecoming Coordinator on the Executive Counsel for the "All Campus Events" student Organization, which is a tremendous leadership role on campus. Serving in these capacities while still performing well in the classroom and shadowing in the clinic is a tremendous testament to Isabelle's time management, leadership, and organizational skills.

I believe Isabelle has done well to prepare herself for admission into your Physical Therapy program. I enthusiastically recommend her for this opportunity to further her experience and education. I am confident that you will find her worthy of this opportunity. She would, without a doubt, be an outstanding choice for admission into your program.

Sincerely,

Carrie Trexler

RECOMMENDATION CONCERNING ADMISSION

I highly recommend this applicant

To Whom It May Concern:

I have had the pleasure of knowing Ms. Isabelle Early for approximately 2 years as she is currently employed by our company as a PT Tech. During this time, she has consistently demonstrated the qualities necessary to become an effective clinician, such as establishing rapport with patients and the ability to multitask office responsibilities. I would describe her as dependable, courteous, focused, motivated, goal-oriented and adaptable. She has become a reliable employee that is willing to adapt as needed to meet the demands of the clinic. She has proven to be an asset to our company and has even taken on the task of recruiting additional PT techs over her timespan with us. I am impressed by her ability to juggle many hats and responsibilities. I believe Ms. Early will be very committed with respect to meeting the requirements of the program's demanding curriculum and has great potential to excel both academically and clinically.

She has demonstrated a strong desire for community outreach, as evidenced with her passion to participate in local schools' "Read, Lead, and Achieve" program, where she facilitates fund raising for the cause. She also participates in the "Champions are Readers" program, another local school outreach program in the greater Knoxville area. In addition to these programs, Ms. Early is also very involved in her sorority's administrative functions and oversight of various projects and fundraisers, such as the "Panhellenic Circle of Sisterhood," which is an organization that funds schooling for underprivileged girls in developing countries.

For the previously-mentioned reasons, I would strongly recommend Ms. Early for acceptance to your physical therapy program. I am confident that she will continue to thrive in the pursuit of her career goals and ultimately prove to be a quality physical therapist.

Sincerely,

Jason Stooksbury, DPT

To whom it may concern,

We at Twin Oaks Anesthesia have enjoyed the assistance afforded us by Isabelle Early. Isabelle has assisted our conference based education company in multiple ways, many times, with minimal instruction and seemingly by instinct. She demonstrates eloquence and goal directed service to our nearly 1000 attendees we see annually. In my opinion, she demonstrates an outstanding fervor towards the service of others seldom seen in today's youths, or so called "millennials". Young people of her age seem to concentrate on themselves more than the old fashioned notion of "doing a good job". This is not the case with this young lady.

Isabelle has earned our trust by serving as an event assistant, when able, for about two years now. Her job duties/responsibilities include, setting up hands on stations and instructor assignments for ultrasound training, and coordinating cadaver lab rotation for attendees. She has also directed transport, set up and security for safe of the art ultrasound equipment valued in excess $500,000 for a variety of nationally run courses. She has completely run multiple registrations and set up for multiple large scale courses, collaborated with on site facility faculty/management with course needs, and made herself available for incidental requirements that ultimately arise. She does this not for compensation, but in the hopes that she will ultimately learn something about anatomy, ultrasound diagnostics and imaging, and gain understanding regarding alternative forms of education. However, her real desire is admittance to the university physical therapy program. In short, acceptance of Isabelle into such a program guarantees the program faculty one less problem student, and encourages the promise that this young lady will bring notoriety to her program following her completion.

It is my sincere pleasure and honor to fully endorse Isabelle Early for admittance to the university program at the earliest opportunity.

My very best regards,

Nicholas Petersen

To whom it may concern,

My name is Nicholas Petersen and I am a physical therapist at Summit Medical physical therapy clinic. I have had the pleasure to work with and get to know Isabelle Early over the past year during her time working for our clinic as a technician. It would be my pleasure to recommend her as a candidate for your physical therapy program.

Isabelle would be an asset to the field of physical therapy based on her work ethic, passion for learning and positive attitude. She consistently goes above and beyond the responsibilities that are given to her. She displays compassion with every patient and helps to provide a positive experience for the patients. She regularly strives to learn about the profession of physical therapy and works to improve herself.

Your program would greatly benefit from having Isabelle as a physical therapy student. She will work to continuously improve the lives of her future patients and coworkers. I have complete faith in her ability to be a successful physical therapist and positively impact the world around her.

If you have any other questions during your consideration of Isabelle as a candidate for your program, please do not hesitate to ask.

Sincerely,
