		Experience Details:	I started playing sports at a young age and am currently an active individual, attending group fitness classes and exercising at least twice per week. Marquette's visualization lab allowed me to be on the instruction side, helping attendees get the most from their work out. My responsibilities included setting up the equipment before the start of class and ensuring students are safe on the bikes by enforcing proper technique to prevent injury and gain the most out of the session.

PERSONAL STATEMENT

My parents instilled me with the knowledge; whatever I set out to do should be of service to individuals who are less fortunate. I realized that the only way to succeed and give back to my community in the long run was to start now. As an undergraduate, I continued to stay involved on campus because I believed that sacrificing my time was worth the benefits I received such as the friendships, the expansion of my professional network, and my personal development. I recognized the importance of initiative, organization, and teamwork when I pursued a leadership position.

In my first semester at Elmhurst College, I was quick to learn there was no voice for pre-physical therapy students. Throughout college, many search to connect with others that have similar professional interests; however, have great difficulty. I always wanted to help other students who are equally motivated, professional, and eager to learn more like myself. I had a passion to fill a void and that passion led to the creation of ARC, Aspiring Rehabilitationists Club. Being the founder and the driving force behind the organization, I strove to advocate for the PT and OT professions and provide resources for students aspiring to be therapists. As the president, I developed a love of using my skills to educate others. I realized that as a physical therapy student I would have the opportunity to continue my eagerness to inspire as a career.

During my leadership in ARC, it was imperative that I held true to my values and thus made service a pillar of ARC's core values. I worked to empower students to diversify their experiences through volunteering and create more opportunity to help underserved communities. For example, I collaborated with the Elmhurst Masters of Occupational Therapy Program (MOT), where we hosted a clothing drive for Stand Up for Kids, a nonprofit organization in Chicago that provides necessities to adolescents who are homeless. I found through this experience that resources and remedies that we perceive as basic can provide tremendous therapeutic benefits for when offered to the underserved. We collaborated with MOT before as ARC hosted a professional seminar learning about the challenges MOT students had to overcome to become graduate students.

PERSONAL STATEMENT

Since gaining 40+ ARC members, I firmly believe that the collaboration between ARC and MOT will continually have a positive impact on Elmhurst's school culture and will help many aspiring students for years to come. As a prospective DPT student, I will continue to contribute to organizations by sharing my leadership and expertise while in the process finding ways to help better the profession.

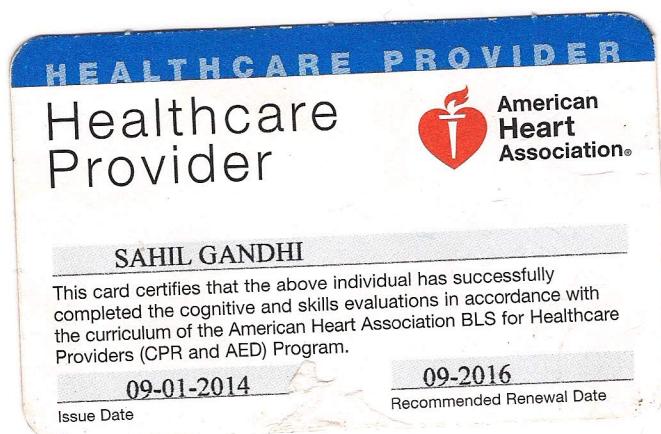

As a leader of an organization, I devoted significant time to personal development. I have a greater appreciation of the field than ever before by connecting with other professionals with similar interests. I found that creating this network established a support system, which surrounded myself with people who sparked my intellectual curiosity and gravitated me towards new approaches. For instance, we hosted a physical therapist, who specializes in rock climbing injuries, speaking on behalf of his fellowship and business. This raised my awareness of what training and a career in physical therapy can transpire. Being a leader has taught me the value of delegating tasks by implementing subcommittees, which provided ARC members with an opportunity to grow in their distinctive leadership roles. This made me realize that work ethic and determination can lead a group forward toward achieving their goals. Remembering the lessons of my parents, the ability to create and to sustain enthusiasm is a huge challenge but also can be a blessing when achieved.

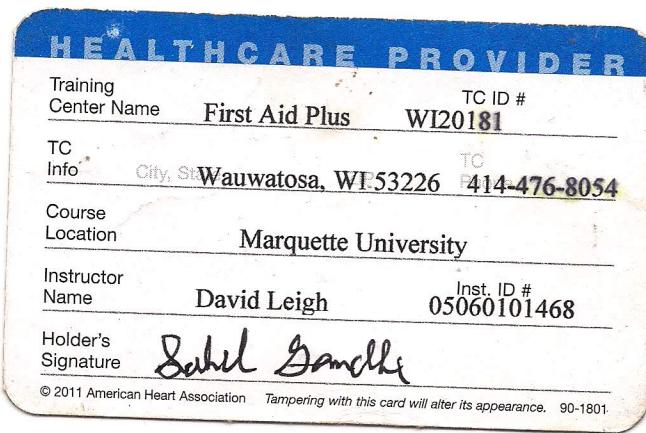

As leaders in the field of rehabilitation, physical therapists must demonstrate leadership and the desire to translate vision into reality while empowering others. I am most appreciative for how my experience with ARC worked in conjunction with the words of my parents, where I can provide the highest levels of collaboration alongside my peers and to give back to all communities. My passion towards the profession has greatly increased my stamina, dedication, and ability to take on leadership positions; translating to the best physical therapist that I aspire to be. ARC helped form my foundation of these qualities and I hope to continue this tradition by providing a larger voice in PT school and in my DPT career.

When my grandmother was a child in rural India, her father passed away. She had to drop out of school and become an adult: cleaning, cooking, and caring for five siblings. The strenuous workload continued as a housewife and mother to six children of her own. My grandmother complained of low back pain for years, but had to continue for the well-being of her family. Health care in her time was a privilege inaccessible to the poor. Eventually, she arrived to the U.S. to the care of her established children. A few years ago, she had imaging done which showed disc herniation in the lumbar spine and was encouraged to see a physical therapist. I attended multiple physical therapy appointments with my grandmother. Since she was unable to do household tasks without pain, the initial priority was to improve her core. This was accomplished by multiple exercises with the use of modalities: back extensions and supine bridges. By the end of therapy, my grandmother gained the confidence to bend forward without pain. To both of us, that was both motivating and inspiring. With this thought, it was clear to me that my mission was to improve the quality of life of others through physical therapy.

I continued to shadow which reassured my passion for the physical therapy profession and my devotion to make a positive difference in people's lives. Evidenced by my observation hours, I continued to gain a broader understanding of the physical therapy profession. One gratifying experience has been working at Brookdale Senior Living Facility. In the SNF, I have felt a sense of community by interacting with patients and their families. I have taken initiative by implementing a walking program for residents to participate in additional therapy. Being able to apply this empathic and holistic approach towards the residents has reinforced my commitment to physical therapy as I hope to create solutions and ensure improved health in all communities.

I believe University of St. Augustine will allow me to continue to collaborate with interdisciplinary professionals, future occupational therapists, throughout the curriculum. I am drawn to the program knowing of its reputation through their student centered approach, clinical sites, and research opportunities. I am excited to learn from a faculty of clinicians allowing me to obtain both foundational science and clinical information in a manner that ensures retention and transfer of learning to the real-life task of the clinician. I believe that my diverse experiences along with my drive to helping others should enable me to continue to transform people's lives through physical therapy school and as a DPT.

RECOMMENDATION CONCERNING ADMISSION

I highly recommend this applicant

July 8, 2018

Dear Physical Therapy Admission Committees;

It is my pleasure to highly recommend Mr. Sahil Gandhi as a candidate for a Doctor of Physical Therapy (DPT) degree program.

I met Sahil two years ago when he became a student in my Functional Anatomy course (KIN 310). Sahil made a positive impression by immediately scheduling a meeting with me to discuss his desire to become a physical therapist. He was and continues to be highly enthusiastic and optimistic, and he wanted to know what I thought about his chances of gaining acceptance into a DPT program and what advice I had for him. Prior to Elmhurst College Sahil had attended another institution and while his grades were not poor, they also were not remarkable. Thus, I articulated to him that his path forward would be challenging and that he would need to be devoted to his studies and earn exclusively excellent grades in order to be considered a worthy applicant by DPT programs. I have had this type of conversation with countless students in my 10 years at Elmhurst College, and more often than not past students in this position were unable to execute this plan. Sahil has been the exception.

In my Functional Anatomy course, Sahil quickly found his bearings and absolutely dominated examinations 2-5. His recall of muscle origins, insertions, and actions was excellent and unmatched by any other student in the course that semester. His questions and participation in class activities revealed that he was always attempting to find clinical meaning from our musculoskeletal anatomy content. By the end of our semester together, Sahil had accomplished his goal of earning the highest possible grade in my Functional Anatomy course, and he managed to do the same in his other courses as well. This trend has only continued. Academic excellence is what Sahil has committed himself to the past several semesters and I am proud of how he has made the sacrifices necessary in order to reach this goal. With his academic success, the Department of Kinesiology named him our Exercise Science tutor for the fall 2017 semester. However, his accomplishments do extend beyond the classroom.

At the conclusion of his first semester at Elmhurst College he approached me with the idea to form a student organization designed to help students interested in pursuing a career in physical therapy, occupational therapy, and athletic training. I informed him of the steps necessary to create a student organization on Elmhurst College's campus, and within two months the Aspiring Rehabilitationists Club (ARC) was founded with Sahil serving as President. In the 10 years prior to Sahil's arrival we had not even had an Exercise Science student attempt to create a student organization to support students pursuing a graduate education. Sahil's energy has been contagious and ARC now boasts a membership of a couple dozen students who actively develop programming to support the application efforts of students applying to professional health-related graduate programs.

Finally, Sahil has taken the time to gain valuable physical therapy related experience (i.e., 1,000+ hours) at Easter Seals, Adventist Bolingbrook Hospital, ARC Physical Therapy, Alden Estates Naperville Nursing Home, ATI Physical Therapy, and the Shirley Ryan AbilityLab. In our conversations, Sahil has demonstrated a unique familiarity with the profession of physical therapy, and I simply have no doubt that he understands the range and depth of the significant role that physical therapists play in the healthcare system. It is easy for me to envision Sahil as a physical therapist because he is genuinely kind and compassionate. He is an exceptional listener, and I believe that future patients will be energized by Sahil's smile and enthusiasm.

Sahil has the intellect, diligence, compassion and communication skills to meet the demands of a challenging DPT program. For all the reasons mentioned, it is without reservation that I highly recommend that Mr. Sahil Gandhi be given the opportunity to pursue a Doctor of Physical Therapy (DPT) degree.

Sincerely,

RECOMMENDATION CONCERNING ADMISSION

I highly recommend this applicant

To Whom it May Concern:

It is my pleasure to recommend Sahil Gandhi for the Doctorate of Physical Therapy Program. As the director of the Physical Therapy Department at Brookdale Senior Living, I have worked closely with Sahil throughout his position as a rehabilitation aide within our company. Initially upon joining our team, the characteristics that attracted my attention were Sahil's positive attitude, exceptional work ethic, desire to grow, attentiveness, and aspiration to learn.

Outside of his administration roles with managing Medicare logs, coordinating physician consultations, and obtaining physician signatures to ensure compliance, Sahil has taken initiative to obtain training by carrying out custom prescribed home exercise programs through observed one-on-one sessions with patients. Sahil has also stepped forward to seek out all observation opportunities with all disciplines and various scopes of practice to absorb every opportunity to learn.

While I have supervised numerous rehabilitation aides, what has impressed me most about Sahil has been his proactive involvement in what some would consider mundane daily activities. Without external prompting, Sahil continually steps in to engage with patients, assist in therapy sessions or actively listen for new knowledge or information.

In closing, Sahil possesses the intellect, strong work ethic, and positive attitude required to make a valuable addition to your program. With his passion for our profession, enthusiasm to study and compassion for others, Sahil Gandhi has the foundational skill set that will make him an exceptional Physical Therapist.

Sincerely,

Laura Bergeron, PT, DPT

July 10, 2018

Dear Admissions Committee:

It is my sincere pleasure to write this letter in support of Sahil Gandhi for your Doctor of Physical Therapy program. Over the past three years, I have had the privilege of teaching undergraduate biology courses at Elmhurst College and Northwestern University while completing my doctorate in life sciences from the Northwestern Feinberg School of Medicine Driskill Graduate Program. Sahil was an exceptionally hard working student in my Human Genetics and Society course during the fall term of 2017 at Elmhurst College. In getting to know Sahil throughout the past year, I directly witnessed his dedication to learning and empathy for others, both of which are paramount to becoming a successful healthcare professional.

In this upper-level genetics course, Sahil was determined to understand and internalize the lecture and laboratory material. He took the course very seriously and showed tremendous leadership in his lab group. For example, as part of course activities, students were assigned case studies to investigate and discuss. Sahil was often leading group discussions and contributing valuable insights. It showed that he studied the material, analyzed situations from different angles and had the confidence to share his knowledge/views. He also frequently took the initiative to communicate with me and ask questions to deepen his own understanding of the course material. In terms of performance, Sahil was consistently among the top scoring students on exams, quizzes and lab exercises. He strives for excellence and does not give up until he accomplishes his own high standards.

In having conversations with Sahil, I also saw his compassion and commitment to the health of others. For approximately one year, Sahil assisted in the therapy of a patient with cerebral palsy. He often discussed how this experience and others in the clinical realm have strengthened his interest and desire to join the field of physical therapy. He then took these experiences and shared them with the Aspiring Rehabilitationists Club (ARC) at Elmhurst College, a club that he founded and expanded to about 65 members. Not only is Sahil motivated to impact the lives of his patients, he is also a source of support and motivation for others to share in this impact and improve quality of life for all patients and their families.

Sahil's commitment to healthcare, science and society is evidenced through his wide range of experiences in academic, clinical and service settings. He is highly intelligent, dedicated and compassionate. Ultimately, I have no doubt that Sahil will become a physical therapist that I would entrust my own family to. Thank you for your time and please do not hesitate to contact me for any additional questions regarding Sahil's application. I may be reached by telephone at: (630) 207-4205, or email at: gorsicL@gmail.com.

Sincerely,
